A FRANCHMAN'S DEATH. A terrible example has been made in Tunis One of the special correspondents attached to the expedition now in the field against the Kirroumirs was Camille Farcy well known as a brilliant writer. He had long been connected with In France, one of the leading journals. The army which he was detailed to accompany was that of General Forgemol. This officer is a martinet, and entertains the most rigie ideas regarding discipline. Before the expedition I ft Algiers be, in confunction with General Vincendon, consected the following pledge, which all the journalists were obliged to sign:

.. I _____ promise upon my honor to transmit no information whatever, either by telegraph or by mail, or by any other means, without first hav ng submitted my manuscript to the examination of the officer commanding the expedition, or to such officer or officers as he may delegate that power to. I further agree that any failure to keep this pledge will expose me to the rigors of martial

This document was signed by all the correspondents attached to the expedition. When Parcy's turn came, he took the pen, tion honestly. All who use them confer upon but it was with evident rejuctance that he them the highest encomiums, and give them signed. When he had done so, he turned to credit for making cures-all the proprietors

But I warn you, sir, that I shall speak the truth, before with any other patent medicine. the whole trath, and nothing but the truth, touching such matters as may come under at the General, Camille withdrew.

"Aba!" said the general, "at it already, my fine fellow. Well, what have we here?" and he seized and tore open the envelope. "Hum! addressed to La France. Evidently some correspondence which you were sending without my knowledge.

"Yes, general," said Farey, calmly "Let us see what it is," said Forgemol, as he began to peruse the letter

"General," said Farcy, coldly, "permit me to remind you that you are violating private correspondence."

"Private correspondence.! Bah!" retorted Forgemol. "Very private, indeed; all Paris would know it in another day," and he resumed his reading.

There were some severe strictures in the letter upon the campaign. Forgemol's reading was interrupted by oaths, and when he had finished he was purple with wrath.

"So," said he grimly, "you consider yourself competent to judge of the operations of a general in the field, do you? Well, you shall have a taste of martial law to add to your knowledge of military affairs.

Farcy disdained to defend himself. A Plasters. courtmartial was immediately convened. Its proceedings were summary-its sentence short : "Camille Farcy is condemned to be shot at six in the morning." It was then midnight. The doomed man was placed in charge of a lieutenant and a squad of soldiers, put upon a special train, and he was borne swiftly to the capital city. Algiers, where the execution was to take

At half-past five o'clock the train dashed into the city. It passed under the walls of the palace where Albert Grevy, the governorgeneral, lives in state. The windows were brightly lighted, and the strains of a waltz were borne to the ears of the prisoner. The governor was giving a ball. You have half an hour in which to prepere for death," said the lieutenant, compassionately; "would you like to have me send for a priest ?"

'I suppose," said Parcy, "you will grant my last request ?"

Then let me go to the ball. I would like to have a waltz before I die." The officer bowed, and repaired to Monsieur Grevy's palace.

" His request shall be granted," said the president's brother. "Who could refuse a dying man's request? Bring him here; he shall dance with my daughter.'

And it was done. The last moments of his life were spent upon a ball-room floor. At six o'clock the officer spoke "The file is waiting," he said.

"Let us go," said Fargy. He saluted the dancers, and withdrew. When he reached the ground where the file was awaiting him, he refused to allow his eyes to be bandaged, and demanded permussion to give the word

" May all journalists do as I have done." said he ; "it is their duty." Then, folding his arms, he cried : " Fire."

The crash of muskets rang out on the moraing air. Camille Farcy fell dead, pierced with balls.

The vengeance of General Forgemol was accomplished.

SNOBBISHNESS REBUKED. The Boston Sunday Budget tells the following story: Many years ago there dwelt in a certain Boston street two families which, although near neighbors, had no neighborly relations or even agguaintance. This grew out of the fact that while the head of one house-let us call him Jones-was of somewhat "low condition," the other, whom we will style Pedigree, was "upper crust, a regular patrician." It rather troubled the Jones family to have the Pedigrees treat them as though they did not exist; but they managed to warry along, and in due time the Jones boys graw up to be men and entered upon he serious business of life, one of them to such good purpose that he acquired wealth and became the President of a bank. One day one of the Pedigrees received a check on this same bank and stepped is to have it cashed. The teller was all politeness, said he had no doubt it was all right, but added that the rules of the bank required that the presenter of a check should be identified. Mr. Pedigree found no fault, and added that he had no doubt Mr. Jones, the President of the bank, could furnish the needed identification. Just then the President happened to pass from his private room, and the teller handed him the check and stand what was wanted. The President took the check, examined the aignature and the indersement parefully, and looking Mr. Pedigree straight in the face, handed it back to the teller and said: "I do not know the gentleman," turned on his heel and went about his business.

Everybody reads THE SUN. In the editions of Il the world's news, so presented that the reader will get the greatest amount of informa-tion with the least unprofitable expenditure of time and eyesight. The SUN long ago discovered the golden mean between redundant tunness and unsatisfactory brevity.

If Much of that sort of news which depends less upon its recognized importance than upon its interest to mankind. From morning to morning The Sux prints a continued story of the lives of real men and women, and of their deeds, plans, loves, hates, and troubles. Their story is more varied and more interesting than any romance varied and more interesting than any romance that was ever devised. Good writing in every celumn, and fresh ness, originality, accuracy, and decorum in the IV Honest comment. The Sun's habit is to speak out fearlessly about men and things.

V Equal candor in dealing with each political party, and equal readiness to commend what is praiseworthy or to rebake what is blamable in Democrat or Ramublish Democrat or Republica
VI Absolute independence of partizan organ VI Absolute independence of partizan organizations, but anwavering loyalty to true Democratic principles. The Sun believes that the Government which the Constitution gives us is a good one to keep. Its notion of duty is to resist to its atmost power the efforts of men in the Republican party to set up another form of government in place of that which now exists. The year 1881 and the years immediately following will probably decide this supremely important contest. The Sun believes that the victory will be with the people as against the Rings for monopoly, the Rings for plunder, and the Rings for imperial power.
